It is named after the noble goddess Athena and narrates its history with heroic legends and epic wars.

All day

Tomb of the Unknown Soldier

The Tomb of the Unknown soldier is located in Syntagma Square by the Hellenic Parliament building. The tomb honors all the Greek soldiers who were killed in war. There is a special remembrance ceremony performed here that further honors the soldiers.

Presidential Mansion

The Greek Presidential Palace is located in Athens, the capital of Greece. It is also the official residence of the Greek President. Built of marble, the palace is beige in color and adopts a neoclassical architectural style. Ten Victorian marble columns stand in a row on the facade of the three-story building. The Greek flag flies from the roof of the central main building, making the entire building look magnificent.

Athens Hellenic Parliament

The Greek Parliament Building, originally the palace of King Otto, the first king of Greece, was designed by the German court architect of Bavaria, Carlo Gallodonna. Besides the Acropolis, the most popular attraction in Greece is the daily Changing of the Guard ceremony. A must-see when visiting Athens, the Changing of the Guard ceremony at the Monument of the Unknown Soldier in Constitution Square is a must-see. The guard changes every two hours, with a grand ceremony every Sunday at 12:00 AM. Following the ceremony, two officers come forward to help the two guards adjust their uniforms, after which visitors can take photos with them.

The Panathenaic Stadium

The spectacular Panathenaic Stadium remains one of the city's most popular tourist attractions and is a shining beacon of modern Athens. Following several transformations over its long history, it eventually became the home of the first modern Olympic Games in 1896 and remains the only stadium in the world built entirely out of marble.

Acropolis of Athens

The Acropolis of Athens, located southwest of the city center and perched atop the over 150-meter-high Acropolis Hill, is the city's landmark and a symbol of ancient Greece. Encompassing four of the greatest masterpieces of classical Greek art—the Parthenon, the Erechtheion, and the Temple of Athena Nike—the Acropolis embodies the civilization, mythology, and religion that flourished in Greece for over a thousand years and is considered a symbol of the concept of World Heritage. In 1987, the Acropolis was inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List as a cultural heritage site.

Plaka Old Town

Plaka is the best area for strolling in Athens. There are many 19th-century streets and interconnected alleys here. In addition to experiencing the traditional Greek folk customs, tourists can also buy exotic souvenirs in the numerous small shops, such as replicas of ancient Greek sculptures, attempted imitations of ancient Greek bronze statues, Greek-style gifts and pottery, painted plates, gold and silver jewelry with Greek classical patterns, traditional clothing, etc.

Little Kook

With a menu that would make a diabetic cry, Little Kook is a well-known coffee shop and dessert place with a hardcore following. But beyond its delicious cakes and scrumptious pancakes, what makes Little Kook stand out is its fairy-tale-themed interior.

Cliff Hotel Tips:

Cliff Hotel is a collective name for hotels located in different cliff areas of the Holy Island. The cliffs represent the geographical location. It does not mean that the hotel must be built on the edge of the cliff, nor does it mean that all rooms in the hotel can see the cliff view. The scale of the cliff hotel is limited. Therefore, the travel agency arranges the hotel in the cliff area. Most of the hotels are small and the rooms are simply furnished. The cliff hotel area is basically a stepped stone road. Parking is prohibited in front of the hotel and guests need to walk into the store with hand luggage. The walk takes about 10-20 minutes. The clientele of the cliff hotel is mainly for couples. Due to the geographical location, many cliff hotels are reluctant to accept children for safety reasons.

We will go to the peculiar black rock formed naturally after the volcanic eruption, known by the locals as "the face of the Indians". After passing the "Venice Lighthouse", the yacht will sail to the Nea Kameni volcanic natural hot spring and stopped in the calm bay for swimming, fishing and dining. In addition to visiting the yacht, you can also enjoy VIP-style service, free drinks, local seafood barbecue dinner, live cooking on board, free snorkeling, sea fishing equipment, and a cheerful atmosphere. Make sure to also enjoy the beautiful scenery and the Aegean Sea, which will make you linger. After the end, we will transfer back to the hotel by private car.

Santoniri Island Tour

First stop: the blue-domed church where National Geographic magazine took the promotional photos for Santorini (the first check-in spot on the island). Standing on the cliff, you can take postcard photos with your mobile phone, with the volcanic island in the distance, the Mediterranean cruise ship in the crescent bay, and the azure Aegean Sea. The second stop: the magnificent Red Sand Beach . This is a huge red cliff formed naturally by a volcanic eruption. There are large areas of red bare rock. The rock is rich in iron, so it has a charming red color, which looks even more magical and dazzling under the sunlight.

The third stop: Perissa , the famous black sand beach on Santorini Island . Formed by the weathering of black sandstone left by volcanic eruptions, this beach offers visitors a glimpse into the charm of the Aegean Sea. The azure waters are crystal clear and icy. Enjoy a cup of Frappe, a Greek specialty coffee, at a beachside café for a truly relaxing experience. The fourth stop: the picturesque town of Pargos (the town with an area of one square kilometer has 49 private churches), which is quiet and classical, with the same blue sky, white clouds, blue roofs and white houses, which is very suitable for taking pictures.

Stop 5: Fira , Santorini's capital . Built on the edge of the 400-meter-high volcano on the west side of the island, this town offers breathtaking scenery. The whitewashed houses and deep blue roofs blend seamlessly with the sky and ocean, creating a picture perfect for a postcard.
