famous for its lush seasonal gardens, free activities, world class restrooms, and al fresco dining. Located adjacent to the New York Public Library and surrounded by iconic skyscrapers, Bryant Park is visited by more than 12 million people each year and is one of the busiest public spaces in the world.

Blue Bottle Coffee

The unique Blue Bottle Coffee was created by James Freeman, and the first Blue Bottle Coffee in New York was born opposite Bryant Park in 2010. Everything in the coffee shop is in order, quiet, simple and precise. Freeman's perfect way must give everyone a perfect experience.

Central Park

Central Park is the back garden of New York citizens. The park is beautiful in all seasons: bright red and green in spring, bright sunshine in summer, fiery red maple leaves in autumn, and silvery white and bleak in winter. Both local residents and tourists from all over the world are deeply attracted by this paradise among high-rise buildings. The park looks natural, but its landscape is actually carefully created: there are several artificial lakes, long walking trails, two skating rinks, a wildlife sanctuary, many lawns and children's playgrounds. It is also a well-known urban park in New York. From "Spider-Man" to "The Avengers", Central Park has frequently appeared in Marvel movies.

Roosevelt Island

Roosevelt Island is a slender island located on the East River between Queens and Manhattan Island. Although Roosevelt Island is small in size, it has a unique architectural history. There are several buildings on the island with significant architectural importance, and they have been the target base for many important urban planning competitions and proposals. "Spider-Man" and "King Kong" have also taken scenes here.

"Down Under Manhattan Bridge Overpass" in DUMBO, Brooklyn

Located on the East River in New York, DUMBO is now a vibrant artistic district. Brooklyn Park along the riverbank offers a great view of the New York downtown skyline and the Brooklyn and Manhattan Bridges. The carefully preserved cobblestone roads, red brick walls, and the popular carousel make this place full of charm.

Afternoon

Little Island

Officially opening to the public free of charge in 2021, the floating park has become a must-see for New York City influencers since its opening. Its unique and refreshing design supports the park, which floats above the Hudson River, by 132 concrete "tulips" of varying heights, forming 2.4 acres of hills and winding paths. The entire island is home to approximately 400 different species of trees, shrubs, ground covers, and perennials, including at least 100 different tree species adapted to the New York climate. Each corner of the island represents a different microclimate, depending on the topography, sunlight, and wind conditions.

Chelsea Market

Chelsea Market was originally converted from an abandoned factory. It is an indoor market that combines a food court and retro design shops. It is one of the most popular markets in New York. There are many novel and interesting gift shops here, which are very suitable for buying souvenirs. "Going to Chelsea Market to eat lobster once" has become an important stop on the must-eat list of many foodies when they come to New York! In addition to seafood from all over the world, Australian pies, French desserts, Japanese sushi and Italian ice cream can all be found in the dazzling market.

The High Line

The High Line is a 1.45-mile-long elevated linear park, greenway and rail trail created on a former New York Central Railroad spur on the west side of Manhattan.

Hudson Yards Vessel

The huge structure located in the Hudson Yards landscape corridor, the center of the square and the visual focus is called Vessel. It is a honeycomb-shaped staircase, and netizens affectionately call it the "big pine cone". You can find unique beauty when appreciating the building from different angles.
