Xochimilco

Xochimilco is a UNESCO World Heritage Site located about 17 miles (28 km) south of the capital's historical center. The name comes from Nahuatl and means "flower garden." Xochimilco provides an experience that you would never expect to have in Mexico City and makes for a fun and interesting day trip.

National Autonomous University of Mexico

More than just a university campus, Ciudad Universitaria is a living testament to 20th-century modernism. Architects Mario Pani and Enrique del Moral meticulously crafted a space where urban planning, architecture, engineering, landscape design, and fine arts merge into a harmonious symphony. In 2007, UNESCO recognized Ciudad Universitaria as a World Heritage Site, acknowledging its embodiment of universal social and cultural values and solidifying its status as one of Latin America's most iconic symbols of modernity.

National Museum of Anthropology

El Museo Nacional de Antropología (Mexico National Museum of Anthropology) is a world-class museum, and one of the best places to start understanding Mexico's long and complex indigenous history, covering early Mesoamerican, Toltec, Mayan and Aztec civilizations.

Afterwards, we will proceed to Teotihuacán, known as the "place where the gods made man", to climb the Pirámide del Sol and look out over the Path of the Dead and the Pirámide de la Luna, with a view of the entire spectacular ruins area. Afternoon, we will go to the Basílica de Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe, then stop by the Palace of Fine Arts to take pictures, and finally we will go to the Plaza de la Constitución, the plaza is like the heart of Mexico, leading Mexico to beat. Not far from the square are the ruins of the majestic Templo Mayor and the construction of the Catedral Metropolitana. The plaza is also surrounded by historic Spanish colonial buildings. This reflects the busy life of the city.

Itinerary:

Paseo de la Reforma → Monumento a la Independencia (photo stop) → Piramide de la Serpiente Emplumada (120 min) → Basílica de Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe (60 min) → Palacio de Bellas Artes (exterior, 20 min) → Plaza de la Constitución (2 hrs., incl. visit to Cathedral of the Bishop, exterior of the National Palace, exterior of the ruins of the Great Temple, etc.)

All day

Paseo de la Reforma

One of Mexico City's principal thoroughfares is Paseo de la Reforma. The original avenue was built by the Emperor Maximilian as a route from his residence at Chapultepec Castle to the National Palace in the city center, where the affairs of government were conducted. Its original name was Paseo de la Emperatriz, in honor of Carlota who, it would appear, made a good deal of the decisions at the castle.

Following the defeat of Maximiliano, the name of the avenue was changed to Reforma, in honor of the reforms carried out under President Benito Juárez.

Teotihuacán

The holy city of Teotihuacan ('the place where the gods were created') is situated some 50 km north-east of Mexico City. Built between the 1st and 7th centuries A.D., it is characterized by the vast size of its monuments – in particular, the Temple of Quetzalcoatl and the Pyramids of the Sun and the Moon, laid out on geometric and symbolic principles. As one of the most powerful cultural centers in Mesoamerica, Teotihuacan extended its cultural and artistic influence throughout the region, and even beyond.

Basílica de Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe

A cult developed around this site after a Christian convert named Juan Diego claimed in December 1531 that the Virgin Mary appeared before him on the Cerro del Tepeyac (Tepeyac Hill). After numerous sightings, so the story goes, the lady's image was miraculously emblazoned on Diego's cloak, causing a bishop to believe the story and build a shrine in her honor. To this day the basílica remains a place of pilgrimage and worship.

Palacio de Bellas Artes

Construction on the iconic building began in 1905 under Italian architect Adamo Boari, who favored neoclassical and art nouveau styles. Complications arose as the heavy marble shell sank into the spongy subsoil, and then the Mexican Revolution intervened. Architect Federico Mariscal eventually finished the interior in the 1930s, utilizing the more modern art deco style. With art nouveau on the outside and art deco on the inside, the Palacio de Bellas Artes (Palace of Fine Arts) is considered one of the most spectacular buildings from this era.

Plaza de la Constitución

The heart of Mexico City is the Plaza de la Constitución. Residents began calling it the Zócalo, meaning 'base,' in the 19th century, when plans for a major monument to independence went unrealized, leaving only the pedestal. Measuring 220m from north to south, and 240m from east to west, it's one of the world's largest city squares.
